MADE IN HUE, VIETNAM

Our new lacquer jewellery is made in a small artist's studio in Hue City, which has been established since 2003.

We were introduced to this project by Traidcraft Exchange and have been working with them to help them westernise their range over the past two years.

Established in 1986, Traidcraft Exchange works to enable poor producers in Africa and Asia to grow their businesses, find markets, and engage effectively in trade. They passionately believe that trade can provide opportunities for people to work their way out of poverty.

Traidcraft's development programmes are directly benefiting over two million people, and touching the lives of a further 24 million. Countless more benefit from their policy and advocacy work.
